WARD'S
Patent Grapple.
THIS GRAPPLE WAS INVENTED BY
Moses N. Ward,
OF BANGOR,
And was patented December [illegible]th, 1868.
IN STRENGTH, SIMPLICITY, and FACILITY OF USE, it is far superior to any thing of the kind ever invented.
It is well adapted in its adaptation to every form of object to which it is right to be applied, taking a certain hold of logs, barrels, boxes and bales, with equal readiness.
No Mill, no Vessel, no Store and Store House, should be without it.
It is indispensable to every ship builder, and every wharf builder. In fine, this Grapple is invaluable wherever there are heavy objects to be grappled, lifted, and moved.
All persons interested in the use of the Grapple, are invited to call and examine them in the store of the manufacturers.

"The Gubernatorial Question."

To the Editor of the Daily Whig:

Will you allow me to occupy a little of your space in which to refer to some points made by "Vox Populi" in his communication in your columns Saturday. He says: "Is the new political movement the result of a sincere desire to promote the temperance cause?" I respectfully ask him to look upon the matter unprejudiced, and answer the question honestly: What other motive can there be? Look upon the position of the temperance men to-day, and then imagine what it will be under the "new political movement." What can be the motive if it is not to promote the interests of the temperance cause? Is it hope of gain, or office, or political power? No one is so ignorant as to expect any such results this year, or the next year. Will he not, then, give the temperance men the credit of acting consistently and from principle?

He says: "It is quite unfair to charge Gov. Chamberlain with a desire to obstruct the temperance movements in the State. * * * If the Legislature did not see fit to enact a Constabulary law, it is not his fault, as he had no control over the doings of that body." Also, "It is absurd to represent Gov. Chamberlain as not a practical temperance man." Does Vox Populi mean us to understand that Gov. Chamberlain's last message, and his refusal to preside over a temperance convention tended to forward the temperance interests of the State; that his influence was not used to prevent the passage of the State Police act, and that the man who takes his social glass of intoxicating liquor is a practical temperance man? Will Vox Populi explain?

Again he says: "Temperance men, manufactured to order for political purposes, cannot long stand before those who are true in principle and ever devoted to that which is right." We will shake hands on that. We agree entirely. The class of temperance men in the State who have so suddenly sprung up since the proposed "political action," and who are so very fearful that the temperance cause will be injured by such political action, cannot long stand before those who are true in principle, who have been life-long workers in the cause, and who look to its advancement without regard to parties or politicians.

QUIDAM.

Comments by The Whig.

The writer of the above communication is a prominent member of a temperance organization, and speaks for one portion of the temperance men of the State, as our other correspondents have spoken for other portions.

We have avoided participation in all questions pertaining to the Gubernatorial nomination, because we have no candidate to present, and believing that we could not in any such discussion assist the Republican party or the temperance cause, which are in a great degree identical. We have no recommendation to make to our friends, save that of adhering to the pledges and policy of the Republican party, with the idea of strengthening its unity and perpetuating its influence.

But the discussion is taking a character which we regret, and while we offer no championship for any man, we believe none who have been prominently mentioned for the Republican nomination are personally objectionable. We give the temperance men for whom "Quidam" speaks the credit of sincerity as we do those who take the opposite view; but in relation to Governor Chamberlain, we believe they are mistaken. There is no evidence to justify the insinuation that Governor Chamberlain has discouraged the cause of temperance; or that he used his influence to prevent the passage of the Constabulary act; or that he would have vetoed that act if it had passed. We go farther than that in reference to the implied charge that Governor Chamberlain is in the habit of taking "his social glass of intoxicating liquors," and deny it emphatically. We believe that nothing is to be gained by any farther circulation of groundless personalities.

There is another point in this communication which demands attention. It is the indirect charge in the last paragraph that the class of men who have advocated united action in the Republican party as the best means of forwarding the interests of temperance, have only acted for the occasion, and are not sincere in their anxiety for the temperance cause. This sentiment has gained too wide a circulation already through papers that have from the first advocated a new party, and entertain a natural jealousy of the political journals. We have repudiated the sentiment before as calculated to prejudice and injure the cause its authors sustain. The former management of the Riverside Echo also repudiated such a method of warfare as injurious, and we are sorry to observe that the present management is arguing more upon personal than upon meritorious grounds. The Republican press of the State, with scarcely an exception, is in the hands of practical as well as theoretical temperance men—men who have done as much for the enforcement of the liquor law as the present advocates of extreme measures and actions. We are unable, therefore, to see the justice or benefit of these innuendoes.

The great need of the time is practical reform. Without work the finest theories are of little effect. We recognize the fact that the responsibility for the success or failure of the temperance movement is upon our party. Believing that the Republican party is practically a temperance party, ready to do all that can be done without the liability of reaction and ready to sustain its past pledges in its future record, we have candidly taken the ground that the greatest danger must lie in its disintegration, while the real work of reform, the enforcement of the law is certain under its continued control.

The Water Works.

The private subscriptions for the supply of water are very encouraging, as we understand. The city is asked simply to pay a fair price for the use of the water in addition. This being all they are asked to do, the question is as to the practical benefit of the works. In order to satisfy all as to the results in other places where they have tried the experiment, it is proposed that a committee of three leading citizens be sent to Massachusetts to satisfy themselves by observation and report thereupon. We hope it may be done.

Meanwhile the evidence seems to be accumulating in favor of the feasibility of the enterprise. Mr. F. T. Sanborn, one of the Salem Water Commissioners appointed by the city, writes a letter to parties in this city, in which after considering our superior advantages to those of Salem, he says:

"In regard to the efficiency of your works as compared with fire engines for extinguishing fires my opinion is that with the Lowry hydrant, located on proper sized mains, you would have no use for engines except at very long distances from the hydrant; the facility and expedition with which the hose can be attached and run, and water thrown gives a great advantage over the engine. All our hand engine companies have been disbanded, and hose companies instituted, reducing the number of men two thirds. We retain a part of our Steam Fire organization, but with the exception above noted, do not think they will ever be needed."

From the report of the Salem Water Commissioners we extract the following in reference to the first experiments with the hydrants:

"At the trial of the hydrants seven of them were opened, to each of which six lines of hose were attached.

"The forty two streams thrown by them could all be seen from the junction of Essex and Washington streets, and it was a novel sight to our citizens to witness these numerous streams rising to a height of 60 or 70 feet, without the aid of either steam or hand engines.

"The trial was entirely satisfactory to all who witnessed it. Hydrants in various parts of the city were also tried, and proved to the satisfaction of all that fires could make but little progress where Wenham water could reach."

Mr. George H. Norman of Boston, who has been engaged in the construction of many similar works, and has examined the chances of this one, says that if the city and citizens offer sufficient encouragement in the way of subscriptions so that the stock could be offered with a promise of a small interest return, to insure success; in negotiating it, he would take a large interest in it with others, and "could promise that the water will be supplied to most of the city this year." He writes to Mayor Thurston and concludes as follows:

"One thing you can rely upon: the city will derive more benefit from the introduction of water than the owners of the works, and you cannot find a city which has introduced water that has not improved in value much more than the cost of the water works.

"The Mayor of Chelsea told me to-day, that if the water works were destroyed, the first cost would not be lost as the city had already gained in taxes more than their cost. I built the works for them but three years since."

We notice that the New York papers are reporting that Ex-Senator Morrill will probably be the candidate in this State of the "independent temperance party," which is of course a great mistake. He has withdrawn from the contest entirely, and in any event, there was no ground for intimating that he would resist the regular Republican nomination.

The Kennebec Journal has found another man who "learned the trade" in that office. And this suggests to us the true solution of the vexed question, why are the people of the Galena District so divided upon the selection of Washburn's successor? None of the competitors have had the foresight to claim a graduation from the Kennebec Journal office.

Miss Penelope Adkins, daughter of the late Senator Adkins of Georgia, publishes an appeal for justice, in which, speaking of the reports in relation to her father, she says his enemies "know and feel it in their hearts that he was killed on account of his politics alone, solely because he was a Republican. The murderers are well known and can be named, yet no step has been taken to bring them to justice."

Another Democratic candidate now comes from the East. The Machias Union trots out George Walker, Esq., of Machias, intimating that the second best man is Charles P. Kimball of Portland. Democracy has most emphatically become the party of candidates, and that perhaps accounts for its scarcity of victories. While they cannot vote for a rival upon principle, they are prevented voting for themselves by a punctilious sense of modesty.

These papers that have of late professed to believe that the Cuban rebellion was conquered, and have wisely claimed to have believed that it never had any significance, suddenly find the place they lashed by the resignation of Captain General Dulce and the appointment of that old warrior, Gen. Caballero de Rodas, to succeed him. It has been for a long time apparent that the rebellion of the Cubans has been much more powerful than their enemies have allowed; and this confirms the fact. Gen. Rodas goes there to fight a cause which Dulce failed to crush and which, now that the host of summer has begun to decimate the Spanish troops, is still growing more comparatively formidable.

BLACKMAIL in all its meanness can scarcely be comprehended by the country reader. There are many illustrations in the New York papers, and the system is a prominent weapon of unscrupulous journalists who have the worst of an argument. We noticed a significant example the other day in a newspaper which caters to the sensational element to a great extent. It was this:

"ATTENTION! Does the young proprietor of the Evening Telegram want a personal controversy with us? If not, let him call off his dogs to-day. If he does render one necessary, it will comprise incidents of interest in both hemispheres."

Wishing to silence a little controversy which was to his disadvantage the editor closes the mouth of his antagonist with this direful threat. We have no knowledge of the editor of The Telegraph, but whether he is respectable or not, the insinuations of the above paragraph are much more damaging than any plain statement of facts could be while not laying the writer open to libel. Not long since a friend of the editor of the same paper was incarcerated in one of the city jails, and complained of his treatment, whereupon the editor published the threat that if he was not very soon relieved from imprisonment, he would "give some entertaining scraps of history in the jailor's early life" which would not be relishable by the subject thereof. The scraps did not appear, so perhaps the object was accomplished. In the hands of such men, the press is a fearful

Senator Morton on the Indiana Bolters.

The prominent opinion of Hon. O. P. Morton on the legality of the Indiana ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment, in spite of the bolting of the Democratic members of the Legislature has at length been published. The argument is exhaustive and conclusive. As we had anticipated, he makes the inquiry to turn upon the point, what constitutes "the House," within the meaning of the Indiana constitution. The bolting Democrats said it meant all the members elected, so that their withdrawal extinguished the necessary quorum of two-thirds; but Senator Morton contends that the quorum changes with the House as actually constituted. If, he says, when the House meets, there be one hundred members elected and qualified; it would require sixty-seven to constitute a quorum. If on the next day, two members should die the remaining ninety-eight would constitute the "House," and two-thirds of that number, sixty six, would constitute the quorum. If, on the third day, forty members resign, the remaining fifty-eight will constitute the House, and forty will constitute a quorum. The number necessary to constitute a quorum will, therefore, change from time to time with the actual membership of the "House."

Senator Morton abundantly substantiates this position by an examination of the other provisions of the State Constitution, and by citing at length the analagous practice of the General Government since the secession of the rebel members of Congress in 1861. He well concludes:

"Legislative powers are said to be incapable of annihilation. It cannot be presumed that it was the intention of the framers of the constitution to place it in the power of the minority, by factious resignations or otherwise, to defeat the will of the people, and, in fact, to destroy the constitution itself. It was not intended that a minority of the people of the State, living in a few counties, should have the power, by the election of members of the Legislature, who continue to resign from time to time, to deprive the rest of the people of the protection of the laws, and of such legislation as their prosperity and happiness may require. While it could never have been designed that the majority should thus be placed in the power of the minority, legislation by a mere Rump has been guarded against by the provision which requires the votes of a majority of all who have been elected to either House for the final passage of a bill or joint resolution. The Fifteenth Article proposed by Congress as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States was ratified by a clear majority of all the members elected to each House. It received twenty-seven votes out of fifty in the Senate, and fifty five out of one hundred in the House. The Constitution of the State has been complied with, not only in letter but in spirit. The will of the majority, which is the very essence of republican government, has declared in favor of the amendment, and all that can be complained of is that a factious minority has not been allowed to defeat their action."

THE NATIONAL PEACE JUBILEE. The contractors for the erection of the Coliseum in Boston are more than up to time in their work and everything about the mammoth structure is rapidly advancing toward completion. The outside is being finished plainly, yet neatly. The eaves are bracketed, and the windows have large projecting caps and sills, supported by brackets. There are also pilasters around the whole building at distances of about twenty-five feet. The outside walls will be painted a neutral tint, to relieve them of the glare of newness, and, be deemed. The work of covering the roof with tarred felting until cement is completed. The painters will commence their labors within a few days. A great part of the gas fixtures are already in place, and workmen are engaged in putting up the decorations.

Outside the Coliseum, the city authorities have arranged to place thirty large street lamps, and for the introduction of Cochituate water the drinking fountain just south of the St. James avenue entrance is in daily use. Toward the rear of the parquet a hydrant has been placed, and one of the city hose carriages will be kept under the north balcony, in a convenient locality, for use in case of need. The hose are to be so wide that the hose carriage can be run through them to any part of the building easily without removing any of the seats. In addition to these precautions, a steam fire engine and a full corps of attendant firemen are to be kept in the Coliseum the whole of the time during the Jubilee.

There will be four ticket offices, two at the north or front end, and one on each side of the building. One of these will probably be opened for the sale of tickets in the course of a few days.

While everything is going on so satisfactorily about the Coliseum, it is gratifying to know that Mr. Gilmore is pushing forward the musical preparations with equal alacrity, and that everything in that department is in the same advanced state. The Handel and Haydn Society began their rehearsals of the Jubilee Choruses on Sunday evening, May 23d.

The rehearsals of the Societies outside of Boston are going on with the same regularity as those of the Boston singers, and, it would appear, with the same excellent results. Combined rehearsals of several neighboring Societies have been already held in different localities, and others are to follow.

The sale of tickets is proceeding at Music Hall, and there is a very active demand for them; both on the part of citizens and from abroad.

GREAT TEMPERANCE CONVENTION. A Washington dispatch says of the National Temperance Convention: On the 9th of June, the National Division of the Sons of Temperance of North America, will begin its annual session in this city, and continue four days. Delegates will be entertained while here by the Grand Division of this District. There will be a reception June 9, and on Friday, the 11th, an excursion down the Potomac will take place, and exercises will be held at the tomb of Washington.—Among the delegates will be Dr. F. R. Lees, the temperance champion of England, Neal Dow of Maine, Gen. Lewis E. Wagner of Pennsylvania, John N. Stearns of New York, Edward Carswell of Canada, and others, over two hundred in all.

THE HAIL STORM IN VIRGINIA. The Wheeling (Va.) Intelligencer thus describes the fearful hail and rain storm which fell in that place and neighborhood on Friday last:

"All at once a terrible blast of wind burst upon us and swept everything before it. The dust was so thick and blinding that nothing could be seen for a few seconds, but when the large and heavy drops of rain had laid the flying dirt, the scene was one of terrible yet peculiar significance. Not a moment was allowed to merchants for removing the goods which were in front of their stores, or the housekeepers for closing blinds, doors or shutters, and these moveables, together with signs, chimneys, &c., were flying in every direction, as if an earthquake had shaken the city from her foundation. Horses attached to wagons became unmanageable and were madly plunging through the thoroughfares, endangering life and limb to unfortunate pedestrians. Before the wind had ceased, and it lasted but a moment, the rain had changed to hail, which rattled against the windows for a moment, and then perforated the glass as the lumps of congealed water grew in size. The sound upon the pavements and the roofs was like the rapid firing of musketry, and so great was the force of the stones that shutters were smashed, and even the window sashes broken and beaten to pieces. Not only this, but the walls across the rooms from the windows were indented and the plastering, in some cases, beaten off to the solid masonry. When the storm was at its highest fury the hailstones were of the size of a man's clenched fist, and solid as canister balls, which they very much resembled in appearance. They were in most cases nearly round, being slightly flattened on two sides like an apple, with small holes or indentations, resembling the place where the stem joins the core, on one side. In less time than it takes to write it, the streets in the lower portion of the city, or that part nearest the river, were covered to the depth of a foot with these wonderful balls of ice, and every window facing the north, from which direction the storm came, filled with broken panes. In about twenty minutes it was possible for a man to venture out without danger of having his head broken. The rain was pouring down in torrents and the streets seemed like huge gutters or small rivers, bearing away boxes and debris upon rapidly increasing currents. Here and there a large tree came floating by, with the stock in trade of a merchant mingled in its branches; carts and wagons were clinging to lamp posts and convenient corners. The depth of the hail and water on Main street was over 3 feet, and the heaps of ice in places were nearly 5 feet high. In the country the damage to the vineyards and orchards is incalculable. The crop of grapes this year is doubtless three-fourths destroyed, and that of next season materially lessened. It would be easy to figure the loss in this product alone as high as $25,000. Of the wheat and corn we will not attempt an estimate."

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup,
Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills, will cure Consumption, Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, if taken according to directions. They are all three to be taken at the same time. They cleanse the stomach, relax the liver and put it to work; then the appetite becomes good; the food digests and makes good blood; the patient begins to grow in flesh; the diseased matter ripens in the lungs, and the patient outgrows the disease and gets well. This is the only way to cure consumption.
To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, of Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of pulmonary consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs, nature throws it off by an easy expectoration, for when the phlegm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off, and the patient has rest and the lungs begin to heal.
To do this, the Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills must be freely used to cleanse the stomach and liver, so that the Pulmonic Syrup and the food will make good blood.
Schenck's Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the ducts of the gall bladder, the bile starts freely, and the liver is soon relieved; the stools will show what the Pills can do; nothing has ever been invented except calomel (a deadly poison which is very dangerous to use unless with great care), that will unlock the gall bladder and start the secretions of the liver like Schenck's Mandrake Pills.
Schenck's Seaweed Tonic is a gentle stimulant and alterative, and the alkali in the Seaweed, which this preparation is made of, assists the stomach to throw out the gastric juice to dissolve the food with the Pulmonic Syrup, and it is made into good blood without fermentation or souring in the stomach.
The great reason why physicians do not cure consumption is, they try to do too much; they give medicine to stop the cough, to stop chills, to stop night sweats, hectic fever, and by so doing they derange the whole digestive powers, locking up the secretions, and eventually the patient sinks and dies.
Dr. Schenck, in his treatment, does not try to stop a cough, night sweats, chills or fever. Remove the cause, and they will all stop of their own accord. No one can be cured of Consumption, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Canker, Ulcerated Throat, unless the liver and stomach are made healthy.
If a person has consumption, of course the lungs in some way are diseased, either tubercles, abscesses, bronchial irritation, pleura adhesion, or the lungs are a mass of inflammation and fast decaying. In such cases what must be done? It is not only the lungs that are wasting, but it is the whole body. The stomach and liver have lost their power to make blood out of food. Now the only chance is to take Dr. Schenck's three medicines, which will bring up a tone to the stomach, the patient will begin to want food, it will digest easily and make good blood; then the patient begins to gain in flesh, and as soon as the body begins to grow, the lungs commence to heal up, and the patient gets fleshy and well. This is the only way to cure consumption.
When there is no lung disease and only Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, Schenck's Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are sufficient without the Pulmonic Syrup. Take the Mandrake Pills freely in all bilious complaints, as they are perfectly harmless.
Dr. Schenck, who has enjoyed uninterrupted health for many years past, and now weighs 225 pounds, was wasted away to a mere skeleton, in the very last stage of Pulmonary Consumption, his physicians having pronounced his case hopeless and abandoned him to his fate. He was cured by the aforesaid medicines, and since his recovery many thousands similarly afflicted have used Dr. Schenck's preparations with the same remarkable success. Full directions accompany each, making it not absolutely necessary to personally see Dr. Schenck, unless patients wish their lungs examined, and for this purpose he is professionally at his Principal Office, Philadelphia, every Saturday, where all letters for advice must be addressed. He is also professionally at No. 32 Bond Street, New York, every other Tuesday, and at No. 35 Hanover Street, Boston, every other Wednesday. He gives advice free, but for a thorough examination with his Respirometer the price is $5. Office hours at each city from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M.
Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic each $1.50 per bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents a box. G. C. GOODWIN & CO., 38 Hanover St., Boston, wholesale agents. For sale by all druggists. jan'y 7 ...

THE OHIO
Mower & Reaper.
The most Perfect and Successful Harvester in the World.
THE DISTINCTIVE FEATURES, which claims superiority over other Mowers:
1st. The double jointed cutter-bar, permits the cutters to follow the inequalities of the ground, to cut closely and evenly over ridges and hollows and ditches.
2d. The whole weight of the Machine is on the wheels, both of which are driving wheels, and every pound of weight is utilized for the work.
3. The finger bar is in rear of driving wheels, thus enabling the driver to see obstructions and avoid them, and when striking any obstruction he does not throw the driver from his seat-over with all front bar machines.
4. The Rolling Motion of the guard bar allows the points of the guards to rise over and go round uneven surfaces. Instead of running into them and dulling the knives. This feature, peculiar to the Ohio alone, enables it to mow successfully wherever any other mower can.
The speed of the gearing and the size of the wheels are so nicely adjusted as to secure the maximum of power with the minimum of expenditure, giving the Ohio an important advantage over other mowers, and enables the farmer to favor his team by driving slowly.
A yoke of oxen will work the Ohio readily where other Machines would fail. This, together with the arrangement of cutter bar, throwing out pushing down, gives it more power and greater motion than any front bar machine, and the lightest draught Mower in the market.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 2.

The number of [illegible] voters in Washington is 18,325, [illegible] of 5200 from last year.

In the month of May the [illegible] of the Treasury sold $5,000,000 [illegible], receiving therefor $7,000,000 in currency. He also bought during that time $[illegible],070,000 worth of bonds at a premium of about $700,000 in currency. [illegible] from Customs in May were $[illegible] and from the Internal Revenue, $[illegible].

It is claimed that the State of Pennsylvania has the right to [illegible] the manufacture of cigars by convict labor, and this subject has been [illegible] presented to the Internal Revenue Bureau. No decision has yet been reached, but as far as can be ascertained, the ruling will be against the claim; for the reason that if the cigars can be thus manufactured without paying the tax, the distillation of whiskey might be conducted on the same plan and the Government by this means would be deprived of a very large amount of Revenue.

A statement has reached here [illegible] that "Information at the [illegible] Department shows almost conclusively that the Brazilian and Argentine authorities will control the La Plata below Asuncion [illegible] and that Minister McMahon's [illegible] and that Mr. McMahon was at [illegible] on the first of April and after [illegible] the river and joined Lopez.

CABLE NEWS.

Paris, June 2. General Dix, [illegible] American Minister, at a [illegible] made a speech of considerable [illegible] which was well received. He [illegible] compelled to separate from [illegible] in Paris. He referred to the [illegible] impressions with respect [illegible] States. He said that the [illegible] that country was to subdue [illegible] and convert it to abodes of civilization. He traced the succession of [illegible] colonists from the valleys [illegible] first to the basin of the [illegible] thence to Colorado, and [illegible] another century will be [illegible] plete the work. The glory of America was not war, but improvement; not devastation, but fraternity; not aggression, for the accession of territory was certain by friendly arrangements, not by injustice or violence.

London, June 2. In the House of Commons last night, Mr. Seely, member for Lincoln, made some remarks on Ocean Postage. He urged that in future contracts for carrying the mails to the United States be made for no longer time than three years; that payment for the service be regulated by the amount of mails carried. He advocated three-penny postage, and hoped negotiations would be entered into with the United States for the establishment of that system.

The Marquis of Hartington (Postmaster General) defended the late mail contracts made by the Government. Although he sympathized with the sentiments of Seely, he was opposed to his proposals, which if carried into effect, would lead to uncertainty in the service, and to disinclination on the part of steamship companies, to compete with each other. He thought the present contracts would be the last which would be made with a fixed subsidy, but was altogether doubtful of the success of any negotiations for establishment of penny postage across the Atlantic. At the conclusion of the Postmaster General's reply the subject was dropped.

The Times, reviewing the correspondence between the English and American governments on the Alabama claims, &c., says:

"Although we were well aware of the frankness and desire for a good understanding, which characterized the two successive British Governments, we knew not the lengths to which conciliation was actually carried, and how completely it was their own propositions, their own acts, which the Americans repudiated through their Senate. When we compare the exacting and critical spirit of America with the conceding temper of England, and come to consider that all that was yielded was insufficient to prevent the rejection of the treaty, we despair of the success of any negotiation in which England maintains due regard for her own rights and honor."

The Constituent Cortes last night finally adopted the new Constitution by a vote of 214 affirmative, and 55 negative.

After the vote was declared, Señor Figueras, amid much enthusiasm, announced that the Republicans, though opposed to those clauses of the Constitution which provided for the establishment of a monarchy, would support and follow them.

Madrid, June 2. It is officially announced that the Queen's birthday is to be celebrated in Madrid.

George O'Donnell, while speaking in the Cortes against the proposed reduction of the Army, was seized with apoplexy and died.

The Cortes is engaged in signing the constitution, which will be promulgated on the 6th inst.

The motion made by the Republicans that the standing army in Spain be reduced was lost—178 to 50.

Admiral Topete informed the Cortes that 600 political prisoners at Fernando Po, but they would soon be transported to the Canaries.

Organization of the N. H. Legislature.

CONCORD, N. H., June 1.

The organization of the Legislature was promptly effected this forenoon by the choice of Hon. John Y. Mugridge, of Concord, as President of the Senate, and Sam'l M. Wheeler, of Dover, Speaker. The caucus candidates for minor offices were also elected. The speeches of both officers were models of brevity, earnest work and a brief session being recommended. Thursday Gov. Stearns will be inaugurated.

ATROCIOUS ATTEMPT. The Lawrence American, of Saturday, says that on the afternoon of that day, just before the Lowell train, which left there at 2:15 arrived at Haggett's Pond, on its way to Lawrence, four ties were discovered lying across the track, at distances of about thirty feet apart. Before the locomotive could be stopped the train had passed over three of them, but was stopped before reaching the fourth. A man was seen near the spot watching the effect of the fiendish work. He was taken in custody and brought to Lawrence. Fortunately, neither the train nor any one upon it was hurt. The prisoner was recognized as a German whom the conductor had put off the cars upon their previous trip to Lowell, the accused being at the time quite drunk. It is a miracle that the train, which was heavily loaded with passengers, was not thrown off, and loss of property or life and limb was not caused. The rascal gives his name as George Springer, and confesses his crime. He is about forty-two years of age. [Boston Journal.

Very truly yours,

M. C. FERNALD.

—Joseph Frost, of Eliot, writes to the Portsmouth Chronicle that hundreds of sheep and lambs have died in Eliot and the north part of York the past season. He says, "I started with 28 sheep last fall 6 old sheep have died, and 24 lambs out of 26.—The mortality prevails in all the farmers' flocks in this section—taking from five to 25 lambs in a flock and many old sheep. I impute the mortality to last year's pasturage—the season being wet and the feed not sweet, and the sheep coming to the hovel poor; and much hay was damaged when stowed. The sheep that die are poor, and make no milk for the lambs."

MEMORIAL DAY AT SEARSPORT. Saturday, the 29th of May, was observed at Searsport by a public meeting of the surviving soldiers and the citizens of town, at Union Hall. General F. S. Nickerson presided. Speeches were made by Gen. Nickerson, Rev. Mr. Adams, Dr. P. Simonton, Capt. Gordon, Rev. Mr. Day and others. Saturday, the 12th inst, will be observed by decorating the graves of the dead, now resting in the several burial places in town, when business is to be generally suspended. Forty-three from this town were reported dead. Their names, and the name of the regiment to which they belonged, were read to the meeting. The occasion was one of great interest.

—On Saturday last, Jay Cooke, the banker, accompanied by a party of friends, went over the Farmington branch of the Androscoggin railroad, on their way to Rangely Lakes, where they expect to spend some time in hunting and fishing, says the Lewiston Journal.

—The Portland Argue says: "Three stores were broken open by burglars on Sunday night in New Sharon, and goods and all the currency they could find, was carried off. In one store was an iron safe which the light fingered gentry attacked, but did not succeed in opening. They, however, damaged it so that the owners could not open it Monday morning. We did not learn the amount of the losses."

—Huge snow banks might have been seen on the last day of May, on several of the mountains in Bethel and vicinity. On the north sides of some of the mountains the snow is said to be still very deep. These snow banks appear in curious contrast with the trees all around them in their bright green foliage, says the correspondent of the Lewiston Journal.

—Portland seems to have a Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce case, as the following record from the Superior Court record shows:—State vs. Martin Shays. Shays was indicted in 1867 for a felonious assault, and upon trial, it appearing that he was an idiot, he was ordered to be sent to the Insane Hospital, where he has been ever since. A law has since passed directing the discharge of all persons sent to the Hospital for observation unless a trial is had. Shays was accordingly brought up from Augusta and placed at the bar. The Court appointed Mr. Drummond a counsel for the defendant, who interposed the plea of insanity. Shays was then remanded to the Insane Hospital.

—Mr. Walter Hatch, late Superintendent of the Portland and Kennebec Railroad has returned from his trip South improved in health.

—The scull race between John W. Randall of Portland, and Butler of Newburgh, N. Y., came off Monday afternoon on Charles River, in the presence of a large crowd of spectators. The distance was three miles, one mile and a half to the stake boat and return, the boats starting from the Union boat house Charles river. Butler's time was 24 minutes 30 seconds; Randall's 24 minutes 55 seconds. It is said that the Portland boys are not satisfied with this trial, and it is thought another match will be arranged to come off in a few weeks.

BASE BALL. Mr. Geyer, Secretary pro tem. of the Maine Association of Base Ball players, is out in a card stating that letters had been received from six of the ten clubs belonging to the association, on the silver ball question. The Athletic, Cushnoc, Crescent and Eon clubs regard the Eon club as still champions. The Androscoggin and Bowdoin clubs consider the Androscoggin club as entitled to the ball. The Norway boys have not voted on the question, and the Pine Tree and Una Mason clubs not having been heard from. All the above clubs heard from voted to which [illegible] match for the championship and silver ball at a Tournament to be held July 5th in [illegible], but are equally divided as to holding it in Portland or Brunswick. Since the meeting on May 12th the Secretary of the Association has seen the City Committee on the 5th of July celebration, and they have authorized him to say that a cash prize of not less than seventy-five dollars will be given to the second club in the Tournament, provided it is played in Portland. The Secretary is in hopes to be able to offer a third prize in cash also.

—Clement Martin, a prominent and well known ship owner of Brunswick, died yesterday morning.

—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Somerset & Kennebec Railroad held at Augusta yesterday, the following gentlemen were elected directors: Hons. Abner Coburn, J. W. Bradbury, Charles Eaton, Geo. W. Stanley, Samuel Robinson, Lot M. Morrill and John D. Lang.

—At 10 o'clock Tuesday night, Mrs. M. A. E. Baker, widow and milliner, while sitting on a bench on the Western Promenade, in Portland, was assaulted by the wife of Irving W. Parker, a lawyer, who fired three pistol shots at her, one passing through her hip. The cause of this act was jealousy. Mrs. Baker lies in an insensible condition, and it is thought she is mortally wounded. Mrs. Parker surrendered herself at the Station and is in custody.

France has followed Spain in granting important concessions to American shipping. On the 12th of June a great change will take place in the navigation laws of the former country. From that date all flags, with a few exceptions, will be placed on the same footing. All American vessels, that is, will pay no more brokerage or pilotage,&c., than those of France, that is, a French vessel. Moreover, whereas at present only a ship cannot take cotton or tobacco from the States without a surtax on the merchandise of from 20 to 40 francs a ton, there will now be nothing to prevent her taking these articles direct to French ports on equal terms with all the world. It seems that in the article of cotton alone, 150 American ships took 250,000 bales last year from the States, this year it is expected there will be more.

Too Late.

There sat an old man on a rock
And unceasing bewailed him of Fate—
That concern where we all must take stock—
Though our vote has no hearing or weight;
And the old man sang him an old, old song—
Never sang voice so clear and strong
That it could drown the old man's long,
For he sang the song 'Too late! Too late!'

When we want, we have for our pains
The promise that if we but wait
Till the want has burned out of our brains
Every means shall be present to state;
While we send for the napkin the soup gets cold,
While the bonnet is trimming the face grows old,
When we've matched our buttons the pattern is sold,
And everything comes too late—too late!

When strawberries seemed like red heavens—
Terrapin stew a wild dream—
When my brain was a sizes and sevens
If my mother had 'folks' and ice-cream,
Then I gazed with a lickerish hunger
At the restaurant man and fruit-monger—
But oh! how I wished I were younger
When the goodies all came in a stream—in a stream!

I've a splendid blood horse, and a liver
That it jars unto torture to trot;
My row-boat's the gem of the river—
Gout makes every knuckle a knot!
I can buy boundless credits on Paris and Rome,
But no palate for menus—no eyes for a dome—
Those belonged to the youth who must tarry at home
When no home but an attic he'd got—he'd got.

How I longed in that lonest of garrets,
When the tiles baked my brains all July,
For grounds to grow two pecks of carrots,
Two pigs of my own in a stye,
A rose-bush—a little thatched cottage—
Two spoons—love—a basin of pottage;
Now in freestone I sit—and my dotage—
With a woman's chair empty close by—close by!

Ah! now, though I sit on a rock,
I have shared one seat with the Great,
I have sat, knowing naught of the clock,
On Love's high throne of state;
But the lip that kissed and the arm that caressed
To a mouth grown stern with delay were pressed,
And circled a breast that their clasp had blessed
Had they not only come too late! too late!"
[Fitz Hugh Ludlow, in Harper's Magazine.

Art at the Eastward.

A FAMILY OF TALENT.

In one of the cities of the Pine Tree State is an unpretending studio of admirable paintings. They are the productions of three different artists, and, including the photographic work, one might say four of the same family; a brother and sister, a son and daughter, of the brother—and he Jermiah P. Hardy, of Bangor.

Artists paint from what they love, and from those subjects which best correspond with their genius. These are those who delineate landscapes with a touch of perfection almost divine. Rarely, you will see ocean pictures thrown upon the canvas as if the very sea-waves had given themselves up to be caught in that small surface. There are historical painters whose imaginations can call up the great events of every age, and delineate the workings of mighty minds. But the artists of whom I write may emphatically be called painters of the affections.

Early in life, almost in the boyhood of the head of this family, the old, old story, so oft repeated, so always new, so ever filled with all sweet future possibilities, became not alone a dream, but a reality. That was a dream in which there was no delusion, and we find it embodied in a fine old fashioned miniature, painted in water-colors, upon ivory. It is the face of a young girl, with a fairness of complexion almost unknown to the present generation with sweetness and purity of expression heightened by a fine intelligence. There is the culture of dutiful, chastened and Christian affections in the face. The penciled brow and soft brown hazel eyes, indicate firmness of organization; while the pretty mouth betrays a delightful simplicity and inexperience of life. The costume corresponds to the date of the miniature, 1821. Abundant dark hair is thrown high upon the back of the head fastened with the immense shell-comb of that day. The side-hair is held in place by side-combs, with short curls shading the forehead, and long curls behind the ears. The dress is low-necked, with 'mutton-legged' sleeves. A half square muslin 'kerchief is folded about the figure and crossed in front, showing the pure loveliness of the delicate white throat.

In the studio are three portraits of the lady of the miniature. We see her next as the wife and mother in a lamplight picture peculiar to the husband-artist, giving a singular, but very pleasing, effect of light and shade. The lady is represented paring apples. There is the quaint costume, also—always the quaint costume; and how much the artist gains by this truthfulness to nature, remarkable in this pictures. There is no dressing up of the subject. It is just as it happens in the every day home-life. The lamplight falls upon the hair and face, giving them a luminous, soft glow; and she is looking down upon her apple-paring. An olive green thibet, made with the full-puffed sleeves and the turned-back cape, then in vogue, quite envelopes the figure. The knife and apple, and the position of the hands, are so true to the occupation that it strikes one as a most happy conceit.

The same lovely face looks at us again in mild contemplation from another lamplight picture. In her hands she holds a book, from which her attention has just been arrested. The dress is of some colored stuff figured with oak-leaves. A delicate scarf is thrown around the neck, and the breastpin is a small ivory miniature of a lost child—fled heavenward. This style of pin is common in the family, and they are the work of the artist sister.

Another peculiar lamplight picture deserves notice. It is of a sister of the family long since passed away. She is knitting, with her face turned dreamily away from her work. The light floods the face with a ruddy glow. The brown hair is put off the forehead like the style of the present day. The dress is of garnet merino, with puffed sleeves; and about the neck a buff crape neckerchief—a custom of the times—is tied in a knot in front. This picture of knitting and the one of paring apples are charming representations of sweet home-life.

The large, central picture of this studio is a wonderful combination of colors. Great labor has been bestowed upon it, and it has been touched and re-touched again and again. Every portion of it has been painted with miniature fineness.

From a large open window the look-out is upon rivers, hill and sky—a soft, summer landscape. The light comes in from behind throwing the light upon the figures in semi-shadow, an effect difficult to produce. Heavy, ash-colored, damask curtains drape this window; a sofa of crimson velvet sits against it; a blue-silk shawl is thrown over a portion of the sofa. The lady of the miniature, older but still beautiful, sits upon that part of the sofa over which the blue shawl is thrown. Her dress is black velvet, with tight sleeves and platted waist, while the neck is adorned with a salmon-colored cravat, once in fashion, pinned with a cameo. Her hair is done up in 'French twist,' with long curls shading the cheek.

A little girl five years old sits by the lady's side. It is the auburn curled, embryo artist. She is looking up into the face of the mother with a question upon her lips—a pleased, conversational attention. A white-muslin frock dresses the little figure. The light and shadow upon the arms and through the dainty sleeves is lovely to look upon. Yellow slippers tip the little feet. The mother sits with one foot upon the sofa to prevent the child falling off. The face is very thoughtful, and she is supposed to be telling the child stories. She holds a diary and pencil in her hand as if to jot down the child's answers. This picture is one greatly to be admired.

The 'Soap Bubble' is a lamplight picture of the youthful artist son. In one hand the little boy holds a silver cup; and in the other, suspended from the bowl of a pipe, a soap-bubble, an airy nothing, rendered with exquisite delicacy, delights his gaze. The little coat is turned back with a velvet collar, and a broad ruffle ornaments the neck. This picture is remarkable for its perfection of flesh coloring.

I remember a painting that decorated these studio walls some years ago. I can only give an idea of it from memory. It was the artists 'Grandfather's Kitchen.' The old grandfather and grandmother were seated at the supper-table, on which stood an ancient pitcher and a brown-bread loaf, with the time honored eating utensils. From an old-fashioned fireplace and hearth blazed a huge log-fire. The family cat dozed in its warmth. The tired boy had just come in from his wanderings, cold and wet from the storm. He had thrown himself down in a sitting posture flat upon the floor, with his feet extended between the immense andirons, almost into the very fire, and his hands and arms held up towards it. The intense glow of the firelight, with the curious figure of the boy, and the entire truthfulness to an antiquated kitchen, made the picture impressive and memorable.

[illegible] is but a series of landscapes from the "Lady of the Lake." One of her admirable paintings is of Penobscot's forests, the trees and foliage peculiar to that region—tall [illegible], gnarled hemlocks and [illegible] pines, with only here and there a [illegible] rounded maple.
